

Accrediting Units Hit By Marvin

By PETER MARTIN and BARBARA WORLEY

“COLLEGE and universities cannot function as trusted, free institutions of higher learning unless their facilities and the administration representing them are kept from interference by standardizing organizations.”

This statement made by President Cloyd H. Marvin was contained in an address delivered before the Association of American Colleges last week in Cincinnati. Decisions made by the Association, which represents nearly every liberal arts school in the country, though not binding on individual members, to a considerable extent influences nationwide higher education policy.

Need for Federal Aid

In addition to the role of the professional school in higher education, the Association discussed the need for Federal scholarships for college students and the propriety of universities investing in business concerns to increase their income.

A committee of deans accused doctors of enforcing “Petrillo economics” to limit the number of students who are annually admitted to the medical school.

The deans stated that a large number of eminently qualified students were rejected because of an “arbitrary and artificial” admission formula and adopted a resolution calling on the Association of Medical Colleges to admit more students.

Disagreement Reported

Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, former president of the Association of American Medical Colleges and dean of the University School of Medicine was startled by the American Conference of Academic Deans’ accusation of medical education “closed shop” practices but “the thrust that hurt worst,” according to the weekly newsletter, Washington Report on the Medical Sciences, came when Dr. Marvin reiterated the charge hard on the heels of the Association’s declaration.

The Association of American Law Schools was also named by the University President as another accrediting organization that has “played very close to” and has become “dominated by” professional organizations.

Post Comments Editorially

An editorial in the Sunday Washington Post affirmed that the University President’s charge is supported by other authorities as far as the medical group is concerned. But “in respect to the lawyers his complaint does not seem to us justified.” What is essential, the newspaper continued, is that “control be kept in the hands of the academic institutions themselves, free from the dictation of professional organizations.”

“Forty-five years ago the nation had one medical student to every six college students; today there is one medical student to every 100 college undergraduates.” The New York Times further said that of the 25,000 students who applied for admittance to medical school last September only 6,387 were accepted.

'Look' Story Cites Shapiro Bribe Case

“GAMBLING Basketball’s No. 1 Menace,” an article appearing in the issue of Look on the stands today, has as its theme the college basketball scene. Featured in the article is the story of University student Dave Shapiro who “was honest and morally courageous” when he “turned in” the gamblers in the attempted bribe case at Madison Square Garden last season.

“Only last season, four crooks—Philip Klein, Joseph Aronowitz, Jack Levy, and William Rivlin—approached David Shapiro, an ex-GI law student at George Washington University. They offered him $1,000 to make certain his team lost by 18 points in a game with Manhattan at Madison Square Garden.”

Dave instead went to University authorities and then to the District Attorney who had him “lead on the gamblers until a trap could be set and sprung.”

“Shapiro followed orders, made suckers out of the crooks . . . George Washington won, 71-63. The smart-money boys got taken for about five million dollars.”

The Look article, by Milton Gross, winds up by pleading for better anti-gambling laws and less of a “hear no evil, speak no evil, see no evil” philosophy by athletic authorities.

University Band Plans Full Slate For New Term

Schedules 4 Appearances At Basketball Games; 2 Concerts Planned

THE UNIVERSITY Band, under the direction of Leon Brusiloff, has adopted a full program covering the remainder of the school year.

The program includes: 1) rehearsals each Sunday afternoon through May 21; 2) the Annual Winter Concert to be held in February; 3) appearances at the following varsity basketball games at the Armory: January 28, Georgetown (their game); February 4, North Carolina; February 11, Duke; and February 15, Georgetown (our game); and 4) the Annual Spring Concert to be held in May.

The program outlined by Brusiloff also includes the Annual Band Banquet to be held in May, the Annual Election of Officers for the year 1950-51 to be held May 14, and participation in the forthcoming May Day program.

Brusiloff Restates Rules

In announcing the “admittedly ambitious” program, Director Brusiloff restated and clarified the rules relating to the conduct of the affairs of the Band. Among the more important rules emphasized in the announcement issued last Wednesday is the rule requiring members to be regular and prompt in attending rehearsals and scheduled performances.

Fire Causes $75 Damage To Delt House

DELTA TAU DELTA held an unexpected “smoker” Saturday afternoon when visiting firemen were entertained at the house, 1909 H Street, N. W.

A fire which momentarily threatened to engulf the entire second floor, was discovered at 1:15 p.m. by members living in the house. The blaze, which had swept the curtains and drapes, was brought under control by fire extinguishers and put out by the firemen.

Damage was estimated at $75 by Chuck Saxe and Don Myrick, occupants of the fire-gutted room. Cause of the fire was laid to faulty wiring.

Hatchet Meets

THE UNIVERSITY Hatchet will hold a staff organizational meeting at 3 p.m. in the Conference Room of the Student Union Office Building, Thursday, February 2, Registration Day. All staff members are required to attend. Interested new students are invited.

Forms Ready For Graduate Fellowships

APPLICATIONS for fellowships available to students under the Graduate Council for the academic year 1950-1951 will be received until April 1, the University announced Sunday.

Fellowships will be assigned in the departments of bacteriology, biochemistry, botany, chemistry, economics, English, history, physics, psychology, French, Spanish, Spanish American Literature, and statistics.

Applicants are expected to be prospective candidates for the Doctor of Philosophy degree and have the Master of Arts degree, or the equivalent, in the general field of their future doctoral study and research.

Each fellow receives a stipend of $900 plus full tuition for whatever schedule of study or research his fellowship duties permit him to carry. Duties include a designated unit of service to the department of instruction in his major field of doctoral study, usually in classroom or laboratory assignments.

A few special fellowships are supported by endowment and are awarded to doctoral students of unusual promise and ability. No teaching or other departmental duties are required of the holders of these fellowships. The stipend varies with the need of the individual student.

Requests for application blanks should be addressed to the Office of the Graduate Council.

Segregation Voted Down In SC Poll

FORTY-NINE University faculty members here advocate elimination of segregation of Negro students in professional and graduate schools, according to a poll published in the November issue of The Southern Patriot, official organ of the Southern Conference Educational Fund. The Fund sent questionnaires to 15,000 faculty members in fourteen Southern states and the District of Columbia, and received nearly 3,500 replies.

Teachers were given a choice of four possible plans to approve or disapprove in the questionnaire, including non-segregation, segregation, and building of new individual schools or regional Negro institutions. 70.5% of those replying favored plan “A,” that of non-segregation. 24.5% advocated the establishment of regional Negro schools, the “Southern Governors’ Plan.” Only 3% of the answers were in favor of continued segregation.

This University was the only institution in the District of Columbia that was polled. 83% of the replies from the University favored plan “A” of non-segregation. In all, fifty-nine replies were received from University instructors, forty-nine of whom voted for plan “A,” and only one of whom voted for plan “B,” that of continuing segregation.

Many of the questionnaires were sent back with reasons for the answers. One medical professor from the University of Georgia wrote, “If we are educating minds, plan ‘A’ is the way to do it. If we are maintaining the status quo, why bother about graduate training at all?”

One University of Virginia professor wrote, “I favor a class society. The Negro is the obvious candidate for the lower class.” A South Carolinian replied, “. . . a few foolish white girls will marry blacks. Thus it will come about that in a few generations nobody can be sure, without extensive genealogical research, that his contemplated mate is all white or all black.”

The poll was taken at the beginning of last semester, and the results have just now been made available to the Hatchet. State Universities were not included in the poll since they were polled earlier last year.

Plans For Opening Belasco Theater Slowly Progressing

SLOWLY BUT surely the legitimate theater will return to Washington, Richard L. Coe, drama critic of The Washington Post, told a large audience at a meeting of the Literary Club last Wednesday night.

Explaining the progress made thus far in the campaign to bring a legitimate theater back to the city, Mr. Coe said the plans for the re-opening of the Belasco Theater are coming along, but no date has been set for the opening of the government-owned building since lease negotiations are still in progress. It was disclosed that if and when the Belasco is opened the National Theater will probably re-open with musicals and large productions being played there, and the bulk of the drama going to the Belasco. If the Belasco is opened sometime in the near future the first production will be either “A Streetcar Named Desire” or “Mister Roberts.”

There is also a possibility, Mr. Coe explained, that a national collection might be encouraged among workers in order to build a Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Theater. Another possibility is a collection among the wealthy people of this area.

Pursuing the topic “The Movies and the Theater,” Mr. Coe discussed recent American and foreign films. The discussion provided both Mr. Coe and members of the audience with an opportunity to express their views on the films. Recent Baltimore theatrical offerings were also discussed.

The reviewer outlined the difficulties involved in reviewing films (See LIT CLUB, Page 5)

VIP's Wanted

• WITH FINAL EXAMS breathing down our necks again, a continuing problem is brought to mind—that of the Convocation and what to do about it. Three times a year the University holds Convocation and three times a year the campus mumbles and grumbles about the inadequacies and inconveniences of this sacred occasion.

Many objections seem to have centered around the granting of AA (Associate in Arts) degrees and its "unnecessary" consumption of time. The ceremony could be a completely functional one, such as some of the very large universities have, in which case, it would be very brief. There would be no procession, the names would be printed in the program, the President would confer the degrees en masse, the orchestra would play the Recessional, and everyone would go home. This might eliminate some of the opposition to conferring AA degrees along with the rest, but would certainly remove much of the dignity and impressiveness from the exercises.

Other ways of solving the AA degree dilemma have been suggested, among them that of not having the AA candidates file across the stage as their names are called. This, advocates say, would prevent the conferral of these degrees from detracting from the honor of bachelor and graduate degrees. The difficulty with such a plan is that it would detract from the stateliness of AA's, a situation which the University wishes to avoid, since for many people the Associate degree is the only one they will ever receive, and because the University was a pioneer in granting that type of diploma.

Holding a separate ceremony for AA degrees would probably not be much better; however, some solution ought to be forthcoming. The University must come up with a workable plan which will satisfy its own pride and yet placate an irate student body that has to look forward with deep dread to sitting through that terribly long and boring ordeal to collect its degrees.

There are many ways that a more healthy attitude toward such a distinctive ceremony as Convocation could be cultivated. Many students have complained that their twenty-dollar certificates look more like dime-store diplomas, and that it is not nearly as regal a document as one might expect. Some students have expressed a desire for music to be played at the ceremony as was done before the war, when a few selections were included in the program.

By far the most important criticism of past programs, however, has been the failure of the University to grant honorary degrees to important personages or at least to invite a VIP to speak to the graduating class. Little else could lend greater dignity or national interest to a university convocation than to have some notable in the public eye give an important address to the graduating class.

It was at a university commencement exercise that Dean Acheson first divulged the European Recovery Plan; it was at Harvard's commencement that Marshall made the plan famous; it was at a commencement that Churchill gave world renown to Fulton, Missouri. Such things might happen at this University if it would begin to invite speakers to Convocation. Certainly, if nothing else, there would be greater interest on the part of the student body in our commencement program.

The University could take any or all of these steps to improve Convocation, or it could use its own methods, but something should be done to make graduation a living occasion that students look forward to as more than just the culmination of an ambition.

Letters To The Editors

Dear Editors:

It has long been the policy of this University to aid students in finding employment. These jobs are frequently the factor which decides whether a student remains in school full-time, part-time, or not at all.

However, it may be that a sizeable source of financial assistance has been overlooked. It lies in the purchasing power of the student body itself (and the faculty) . . . Suppose a list is compiled of all students in the selling business. They may sell vacuum cleaners, automobiles, clothing, kitchen supplies, magazines, or any items desired. Then, when a fellow student wishes to make a purchase, he merely checks one of the several lists for the name (and phone number) of the student selling the desired article. The nickel for the phone call could probably be cheerfully refunded on most sales! If the article is to be purchased, why not from one of our own students?

Incidentally, services could be listed also, such as carpenters, one-trip plumbers, baby sitters, or what have you . . .

If there is a civic-minded individual in the vicinity who feels this idea is worth a trial, let him step forth with sleeves rolled up.

"It Won't Help Me Now—I'm Graduating."

Copy this one, Miss Slep. It's sub-footnote "B" under footnote No. 4. Make it a discussion question worth 20 points.

A Word To The Unwise

• NO PREACHING in behalf of honesty during examinations should be necessary, we feel, at the college level. Since the final examination period begins next week, it is fitting, however, to review for the student body and faculty as well, the regulations stated in the catalogue on pages 36 and 41.

1. "A student guilty of dishonesty in examinations may be deprived of credit for the course in which dishonesty occurs and may be dismissed from the University."
2. "The right is reserved by the University to dismiss or exclude any student from the University, or from any class or classes, whenever, in the interest of the student or the University, the University Administration deems it advisable to do so."

We agree with last year's Committee on Academic Dishonesty that "inasmuch as the Office of Admissions demands the utmost integrity in the selection of new students or the re-admission of former students, it is but logical that that same degree of integrity shall be maintained if the student is to remain within the University." Much of the responsibility for conducting dignified examinations remains with the individual instructors whose duty it is to enforce the University regulations against dishonesty.

THE ART OF WINDOW-PEEPING

• WINDOW-PEEPING REQUIRES insight in the strictest sense of the word. It takes skill, says the Texas University Ranger. Contrary to opinions common among staid, non-indulgent males and the majority of females, peepers are not blundering imbeciles stumbling from house to house with the insensibility of a bull in mating season. Rather are they frustrated, but to no greater degree than pinball fanatics, who are also participants in an exacting art.

Of the younger male generation (due to insufficient data, female peepers will not be taken up at this writing), excluding individuals confined to wheel chairs or kept at home by narrow-minded wives, it has been estimated conservatively that 64.7% do, or have in recent years, peeped.

What one wears is of utmost importance. Logically enough, the peep would be stupid indeed to wear a white dress shirt and loud tie while making his rounds. Black, or at least dark colors, predominate. Dull-colored clothing, such as khaki, runs a poor second. A boom in window-peeping after the close of the recent war was attributed to the Navy flooding the market with its near-black turtle-neck sweaters.

The peeper generally goes hatless. It is considered most important to have all senses as keen as possible, and a hat undoubtedly impairs the vision. Most important is the fact that peepers accustomed to going hatless often have been detected by the mere brushing on the screen of their hat brims.

A recent case reported in The Daily Texan was of a peeper clad in a checkered shirt, a violation of concealment fundamentals, which no doubt would have ended in disaster had not the peeper been well trained in speed and the principals of escape.

Instances have been known where peepers united and worked together, pooling their information and even assigning routes, as was the function of the Window Peepers Association, familiarly known as the WPA.

It is compulsory that the peeper have his escape route planned before undertaking a mission. The low-hanging clothesline can be put to great use here if prepared for by the peeper. Policemen are reported as "sitting ducks" for clotheslines.

Other minor contributions and tricks of the trade too numerous to mention have been developed since the birth and pioneer stage of window-peeping. Many are kept confidential as individual traits. Often an act can be traced to a specific peeper, who although he escapes unidentified, is known by a peculiar procedure such as the presence of a camera equipped with infra-red film, telephoto lens, and periscope attachment.

FROM INDIANA UNIVERSITY

An indignant sorority sent this note to a neighboring fraternity: "Your course in anatomy is not appreciated. Please keep the blinds down."

The house manager returned the note, after scribbling on the back: "Course not compulsory."

WESLEYAN ARGUS ON CLASSIC FINALS

Yes, indeed, gentlemen, these semester exams are less than a week away. We don't pretend that our comments will help any student (nothing the student does can help), but we might lead a few faculty members to see their handiwork in a new light.

The true-false, the fill-in type, the definitions-style exams offer many pitfalls to the unsuspecting. But the student still has to face the essay budget-your-time exam:

Section A. Choose any two of the following essay questions, discuss both sides, give examples, and cite references. Four minutes for each.

1. Cogito ergo sum. What has this to do with the Cartesian revolution, the Copernican revolution, the French revolution?

2. Why did Hamlet love his mother? Defend your statement by drawing on your own experience.

3. Show how Thomas Aquinas' concept of justice would apply to the expected rise in Capital Transit fares.

Section B. Identify the title, person, and situation. (An easy open book card quiz.)

1. "There he is."
2. "How now, knave."
3. "Say Heav'nly Muse, shall not my sacred vein."
4. "Your guess is as good as mine."

2 New Courses In Journalism Inaugurated

• DR. ELBRIDGE COLBY, executive officer of the Journalism Department, has announced two new courses have been added to the journalism curriculum.

A course in newspaper advertising will be offered for the first time in February. The instructor will be Franklin J. Ehler, who is associated with the advertising department of the Washington Times-Herald.

Robert E. Hasper, managing director of National Business Publication Inc., will teach a course in public relations. Mr. Harper formerly was advertiser and publicity director of the National Association of Ice Industries, director of programs in the Office of Defense Transportation, and assistant to the president of the Motion Picture Advertising Service.

Mr. Harper spoke to the members of Journalism class 71A last Friday. He defined public relations as "an interchange of goodwill between a private interest and public interest, through which all acts, policies, products or services of private interest became reflections of needs and desires of the public."

John V. Hinkel, former New York Times correspondent in Spain and at present a public relations man in Washington, was guest speaker at the other section of Journalism 71.

2 Shows Added To Air Force Concert Series

• THE REGULAR Tuesday evening symphony concerts presented by the United States Air Force Orchestra, and "Time For Defense," the official weekly program of the Department of Defense, will be presented at 8:30 p.m. in Lisner Auditorium through January 31.

Although the series of thirteen programs were originally scheduled to end January 17, two of the concerts were transferred to Bolling Field because of conflicts with the University schedule. Lenny Grant, Student Council program director, remarked that it was unfortunate that the additional two programs occurred during exam week and between semesters, but radio commitments prohibited further postponement.

The program for tonight includes Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Russian Easter Overture," "Stars" by Howe, and Cimarosa's "Concerto for Oboe and Strings." The final selection on the first half of the program will feature the Scherzo, Intermezzo, Nocturne, and Wedding March from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Kirsten Comments

By LEN KIRSTEN

● DISAPPOINTMENT. The work of the Current Affairs Club this past semester has been largely disappointing. In contrast to last year, when they conducted many programs concerning important national and international questions, this semester they have presented only two—one on the Atlantic Pact and the French speaker last night. The club was faced with typical problems at the start of the semester: the president got married and had to resign; club membership changed due to graduations, transfers, etc.; Congress was out of town and that reservoir of speakers was not available; other speakers were slow to accept invitations to speak. Slowly, the Current Affairs Club, under its new president, Mary Ann Smith, has been building the club again. Prospects for next semester are good and we are looking forward to more of those thought-provoking programs we have come to expect from the Current Affairs Club.

● IMPORTANT MATTERS. While the Student Council concerns itself with such matters as the Student Union, racial policy, charity drives, and the activities fee, the Students' Association at the University of Texas faces greater problems. This became evident recently when the Student Council received a special request from one David Rainey, "Chairman, Sweetheart Elections Rules Revision Committee, The University of Texas." Mr. Rainey and his associates seem to be concerned over their present method of selecting a college sweetheart and are conducting research on the means used to elect a sweetheart at other schools. The Committee wants to know the University's "qualifications of candidates for sweethearts, the manner of nominating candidates, the procedure of election and the amount of campaigning is permitted on behalf of the candidates." Apparently they take this sweetheart business more seriously in the Lone Star State than here in the barbaric east.

● DISPLACED STUDENT. W. R. Kearney, a law student, tells of a friend of his who was half-way through a law course at the Washington School of Law, a neighboring institution on G Street, before he found out that it was not the University Law School.

● G ST. IRON CURTAIN? Speaking of neighboring institutions, it has always seemed strange that, although part of American University is a scant one block from GW, the contact between the two schools is almost non-existent. A few of the religious clubs hold joint functions with AU, but that's about as far as it goes. It would seem that both schools might benefit from social and cultural exchange. There's not much sense in letting G Street become an Iron Curtain.

● BACKWARD GLANCE. While rummaging through a Hatchet file cabinet for something-or-other, I happened across a bound set of Hatchets for the fall of 1935. This was the year Marie DiMaio was three years old. The Colonial Coffee Shop was offering luncheons at 25 cents and full course dinners at 35 cents. Cigarettes at Quigley's were two packs for a quarter. Students were concerned over the new ruling from the faculty that a quality point index less than 2.00 would put them on probation. Up to then, it was 1.50 in the Junior College. A girl named Margaret Davis was promoted to the Senior Staff of the Hatchet. She later became editor and is now on the staff of the University in the Public Relations office. An electric balloting machine was used in the Student Council elections. In a football game between the University and Emory-Henry, the sports staff reported, "Tuffy Leemans was the whole show, as is becoming his habit. It was his ten yard pass to Ray Hankin, who ran 15 yards in a clear field..." The Hatchet ran an editorial deploring the fact that the University will no longer provide free bluebooks for examinations.

● VEEP AGAIN. As a follow-up to Vice-President Barkley's letter to me as Student Council vice-president requesting that the name of "Veep" not be used for the vice-president of any organization, comes the news that the Jockey Club in New York has approved the name of "Veep" for a two-year-old chestnut colt owned by C. V. Whitney. Mr. Barkley had given his permission to use the name. Thus it seems that "Veep" is o.k. for horses, but not people. I can't quite figure out the significance of this development, but I'm sure it's there.

● STUDENT REVENGE. A colleague in the Speech Department, Ken Gotobed, told recently of a student's

Speech Clinic Both Teaches And Corrects

● THE UNIVERSITY Speech Clinic, directed by Calvin W. Pettit, assistant professor of speech, offers instruction in correction of speech impediments to both children and adults. Group as well as individual lessons are given during the day and evening.

Established in 1946, the clinic has grown to include facilities at the University Hospital in addition to those in Lisner Auditorium. Regular staff members, besides Mr. Pettit, are Mrs. Edith S. Surrey and Mrs. Lee S. Bleisky, both of whom are University instructors in speech.

When an individual first reports to the clinic, he is interviewed by the director, who makes the diagnosis and begins a case history.

If there is any indication of an organic problem, the patient is referred to a laryngologist, dentist, or other appropriate specialist. Occasionally an operation is necessary before corrective work may be started.

When a hearing loss is suspected, the individual is given an audiometric test. In some cases, the patient is referred to the University's psychology department or reading clinic.

Before commencing corrective work, the instructor makes a recording of the patient's speech, which is played during the training to judge progress. At the close of the instruction period a second record is made to determine the total degree of improvement.

If patients desire treatment in addition to that given by regular staff members, it is often possible to have lessons, at no extra charge, from University students in training as speech clinicians.

Such students are majors in speech correction, a curriculum including, in addition to speech, psychology, physiology, and education courses. Practice and observation in the University Speech Clinic are important parts of the training in this field.

Band

In discussing this rule, Colonel Brusiloff stated that "regular and timely attendance at rehearsals and scheduled official appearances has always been and now is a prerequisite to continued membership in the Band."

Recognizing that illness and other emergencies constitute proper excuses for the absence or tardiness of members, the Director also announced the creation of a Membership Committee to assist Band Secretary Bob Morrison and the Director in reviewing and revising the Roster of Members in the light of a newly prescribed system of attendance records. According to Brusiloff, the Membership Committee "will assist in reviewing excuses of absent and tardy members so that injustices in suspension of membership can be avoided."

In furtherance of some of the plans included in the announced program Band President Art Featherstonhaugh will head committees to complete arrangements for the Winter and Spring Concerts. He will also head the Banquet Committee composed of the officers of the Band and the Director or his designee.

In releasing the program of the Band through May 31, Director Brusiloff advised each member as follows, "I am sure you will find that this program offers you and other members of the University Band an outstanding opportunity to serve important needs and interests of the University, the student body, and the interested public in a field that ranks high among all of the activities on the campus."

"This program also offers you a planned period of free training in music, both from the professional point of view and as an interesting and enjoyable avocation. The program also offers opportunities for your participation in the social and recreational activities of the Band and, in addition, opportunities of earning official awards in recognition of service to the University."

● DUE TO CIRCUMSTANCES beyond our control the column originally scheduled for this space will now be read. The foggy part of bottom and the bottom part of foggy decided to return to the scene of the crime and so in our office on the bed of the Potomac we are informed that:

● YOU BELONG TO MY SWEATER: Don Knight of PIKA pinned Kay Hunsaker . . . Betty Didlake, Pi Phi, pinned to Bill Perkins of KA . . . likewise John Nutman of Sigma Chi and Helen Joy, Pi Phi . . . Kathryn Plugge, DZ, became engaged to George Foley . . . Stan Williams, Phi Sig, pinned DZ Robbie Robertson . . . Dick Small had his pin made into an engagement ring for Sally Rubin . . . Blanche Higgins, DZ, surprised the campus crowd by announcing that she has been married to Bill Sheppard, Sigma Chi, since August . . . Jane Parker, Chi O, is not engaged to Everett Severe, SAE—just pinned . . . Buzz March, Delt, pinned to Ramona Rhoades, DG, for two months.

● RAISE HIGH THE BUFF: Representing the Alma Mater at the GW night at Meadowbrook arranged by Phi Alpha, we find Biff Mauriello, PIKA, and Adeline Cantelmo; Bud Goglin, PIKA, and Hildy Cascio; Phil McNiff, PIKA, and Iris Garth; Tiger Kline, also PIKA; Jule Snyder, SAE; John Aravenitis; Bill Benson, KA, and Ginny Ford, DG; half of Phi Alpha, including Fred Block and his ball and chain Phyllis, Herman Ziegler and Dotty Johnson, Ken Mines and Hazel Gordon.

● SOME MORE OUT-DATED NEWS unattractively presented: Gloria Binzell, Pi Phi, is engaged to Navy-man Jack Sullivan . . . Keppie Kephart, ChiO, and Bill Collier were married during Christmas time . . . Dick Generelly, SAE, gave Ann Ellis, Pi Phi, his pin . . . Jim Krefting, Delt, decided on Peg Faunce, DZ, and proved it by pinning her . . . Nancy Stephens, Theta, has Jim Hudson's PIKA ring.

● SPEAKING FRANKLY: Following Sigma Nu's Christmas Formal, Bill "I'm going to stay here all night" Patterson, ex-president as of yesterday, had to be ousted from the Sigma Nu suite at the Wardman Park by the "dirty law dogs."

Jack Skelly was finally initiated into KA last week and got his share of the pranks at the KA's Tacky Ball . . . The SAE's started out the New Year by exchanging with the Pi Phi's Sunday . . . Teke's and Acacia's gathered their two clans together at the Acacia house and threw a New Year's Eve blast . . . ChiO's had the Sigma Nu's over for one of their coffee hours last week . . . Orch and Denise Dybling Bennington, KA and ChiO, popped in from Chicago over the holidays . . . The Phi Sigs enjoyed a spaghetti dinner Saturday night, prepared by the pledges. Sunday afternoon the actives honored the pledges and their mothers with a tea.

With the opening of Congress all the fraternity men crawl back into their dark suits and we shall now crawl back into our cocoon and wait for metamorphosis into a genius so that we can party and forget exams for another week? But not before telling of Audrey Rand, ChiO, who is now engaged to Bart Merritt, PIKA, or of Tommy Atkins who is now engaged to Joan Donaldson, ChiO.

The KA's selected Normandy Farms as the site of their annual pledge formal . . . the enormous chartered bus outside the building indicated that one of the SAE's many platoons were present as were Sigma Nu's, Sigma Chi, PIKA and other unmentionable (exact data is not available) fraternities . . . amidst candle light, fireplace warmth, and European atmosphere the band played on till the wee hours of the morning (coffee was served).

Something of Myself For You Lucky People
(A Self-sketch in the manner of Mr. Shaw.)

• WITH ANYTHING that is good or true or beautiful, I, at one time or another, have had something to do.

The educational system in America is a complete waste of time. I can think of no one who has benefited from it with the exception of myself, and even then it is impossible to say which of us helped the other the most.

There have been three great playwrights in the history of the world: Sophocles, Colley Cibber and Myself. The last named of the three is undoubtedly of the greatest significance. Shakespeare is archaic, but the very fact that I mention him here will probably cause the continued reading of his plays for another fifty or one hundred years. Of course, it would be impossible to produce any of his plays today—unless I played the lead Myself.

In each age there has been one man who has given that age its historical significance through his actions and thinking. He is the man of the century. Our century, despite its wrongs, has been blessed with a man who has given it more meaning than any other age. Because of this I am happy that I, Myself, am that man. The modesty that has enabled me to achieve this position forces me to admit it.

I am still something of a child. Although I am now 134 years old, I still like to play bean-bag, still feel that the two-pants suit is the answer to our economic and social troubles, and still consider women the equal of men. Perhaps when I am 150 I will have outgrown this.

Only the great can be simple. Only the very great can be obvious. Sometimes I think I am too obvious.

Much of the great literature of the world has been written in our time—practically all of it by Me.

Poverty is the opium of art. Society feeds the rich and posterity reads the poor. I might never be the great writer I am if it wasn't for the fact that during the twenty-second year of my life I ate but one meal a month. I might not be as thin as I am either.

In speaking of my seventy-five years romantic correspondence with Desdemona Smudgrosier, the famous Seattle burlesque queen, whom I never met and who was dead during the last fifty years of the correspondence, please remember that only on paper has humanity achieved sympathy or filled an inside straight. Besides, I don't think a meeting would have added much to the romance—undoubtedly the most poignant in history—since Desdemona spoke nothing but Pig-Latin.

When I was a child my mother said of me, "G. B. is shy, reticent, modest, almost bashful." These are still my main personality traits.

The tragedy of our time is civilization's failure to realize that my birth was the Second Coming. Perhaps in the next half of the century this mistake can be rectified.

My musical education has been uncanny. At the age of three and a half I could play every known opera on my Jew's-harp.

The fact that I have blasphemed them has made the reputations of many of the best known writers of the world. Only by kicking someone when he's down do you make him a hero. Mmm, I've a mind to make several authors now: Keats was a bum, Jonson was a bum, Browning was a bum, Thomas Lovell Beddoes was a bum. But perhaps I am being too kind.

Marriage has been such a failure because people insist on trying to love one another. If husbands and wives would admit at the start that they hated each other's guts, this business of living might be accomplished with a little more dispatch.

The most beautiful actress of our time said that she was fascinated by me. How true of all of us.

Only a truly great writer can cause trouble. I have practically made Armageddon a reality.

The people of the world wait for my death like a flock of hypochondriacs. What delicious sorrow there will be when I die.

Slide Rule Slants

By ED HAYES

• THE SUCCESS of the Engineers' Mixer held last October 5 brought forth many requests for a second mixer of the same type to be held at the opening of the second semester. In response to these requests, the Engineers' Council has announced that the second semester mixer will be held again at Ruby Foo's Den on Wednesday, February 8, from 8:30 to 12 p.m. The affair, which is strictly stag, will be informal. Attendance is expected to be much heavier than at past mixers, and every effort is being made to inform the new students that their presence is desired. Soft drinks and beer will be sold at the mixer, and this time potato chips will definitely be available.

ENGINEERS' BALL—Tickets for the annual Engineers' Ball are now available from any member of the Engineer's Council at three dollars per couple. The Ball will be held Friday, February 17, in the Hall of Nations Ballroom of the Washington Hotel. Door prizes will be distributed at intermission at the ball, which is semi-formal.

ENGINEERS' RING—The newly designed Engineering School ring is not yet available. Dr. Marvin has the matter under consideration, but final approval of the ring design has not yet been made. As soon as this official acceptance is received, the rings will be available on order through the Student Supply Store. Those students who graduate in February are anxiously awaiting this approval, in the hope that it will be received in time for them to get rings of the new type.

SOCIETY MEETINGS—The February meetings of the Engineering Societies, with the exception of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, will not be held because of the mixer. The exact date of the ASME meeting has not been scheduled, but will be announced soon. ASME is holding this special meeting in order to make possible the scheduled delivery of student technical papers.

THETA TAU DANCE—Theta Tau, the Engineering professional fraternity, held one of its two annual dances as an informal juke-box affair Friday night, January 6, at Shady Oaks Inn, in Capitol Heights, Maryland. Student and alumni members were invited.

MECHELECIV—Subscriptions to the Mecheleciv will be available to those students who do not already have annual subscriptions at the mixer and at registration. This partial subscription, for the three issues of the second semester, will cost 60 cents. Since the Engineering Alumni Association started their drive to support the cost of alumni copies of Mecheleciv through alumni contributions, considerable interest has been evidenced by the alumni in the form of letters to the magazine commenting on the new makeup, articles and news items.

Religious Thought Subject Of Talk By Reverend Kopf

• UNDERLYING principles of religious thought were discussed by Reverend Carl Kopf in his talk on Neo-Orthodoxy at the meeting of the Religious Philosophy Club Wednesday evening at Hillel House.

After a period of questions and discussion, the members heard and adopted a constitution for the club which was organized this fall.

Announcement of officers, who will be appointed to lead the club to official recognition, is expected soon.

The constitution, as adopted, includes as the object of the club the principles as printed in an earlier Hatchet, that the purpose of the club is to develop interest in the faiths of all men in all ages and to foster a more active inquiry into the living issues in religion.

revenge on a professor which occurred in Nebraska. The student, highly dissatisfied with his treatment at the hands of the professor hit upon a way of striking back. He clipped coupons from magazines, filled in the name and address of the professor, and mailed them in. Soon the professor was flooded with pamphlets, circulars, and merchandising offers. Book clubs started mailing current selections. A set of encyclopedia arrived. The prof. still doesn't know where they got his name. Note: Reporting of this incident does not necessarily imply an endorsement of the idea behind it.

SESQUI PLANS. With all of this talk of the Washington, D. C. Sesquicentennial in the air, the question is raised about GW's participation in the observance. It is highly appropriate that we do quite a bit since we bear the name of the man who is so closely associated with the origin of the city. Also, the University is only twenty-one years younger than the city itself, although we were called Columbian College at the start.

JOE COLLEGE DEPT. The rah-rah boys and girls will be delighted to learn that the Supply Store has just gotten in a fresh supply of buff and blue beanies, complete with "1917" emblazoned thereon. Now we're really equal with Harvard and Yale, Dean Kayser.

CHIT CHAT. President Marvin has the thanks of the student body for accepting so promptly our suggestion that an attendant be provided in the Union to check out equipment. . . . Students wishing to give or receive auto rides home between semesters should consult the lower right hand corner of the Student Union bulletin board where such notices will be posted. . . . To give you an idea of the expenses involved in running the Union, each light bulb costs 84¢ cents. . . . The Press Photographers Club must have thrown in the towel. They never returned a revised constitution to the Student Council Advocate. . . . Mortar Board, women's honorary, and Omicron Delta Kappa, men's honorary, will run an information booth for freshmen and new students during registration. . . . A good project for one of the internationally-minded clubs would be to gather travel information for students interested in making a trip to Europe this summer. . . . Alpha Lambda Delta, women's honorary, is giving life to the idea that scholastic acumen and ability to get a man do not appear together. Three of their ten members have recently become engaged. . . . Most campus leaders estimate that nearly all of the extra-curricular activity at GW is carried on by about 1,000 students. . . . Three years ago, the army and navy discharge button was a common sight. Now, it is definitely a sartorial oddity. . . . Many people are interested to see if the Independent Students Association will be able to salvage the remnant of its organization and become active again. . . . Columbian House used to have an impressive war cannon in front of it until it was carried off during an inter-school rivalry.

Players Elect

• THE FOLLOWING were elected officers of the University Players at a recent meeting: Henry Danilowicz, president; David Rogers, vice-president; Sibyl Grayson, secretary; Larry Strawbridge, treasurer. Also elected were a Board of Governors consisting of Pat Sellers, Barbara Kananack, and Pericles King.

It Takes All Kinds

By JERRY GOODMAN
Brooklyn Polytechnic Reporter

THE GENIUS—Just sits there. Doesn't move until professor makes very profound statement which no one understands; then he slowly shakes his head up and down. He wouldn't lend his homework to his mother. Strives for a 4.1 average. Has no friends except other geniuses. Knows about girls from movies.

THE WATCHDOG—Waits for professor to leave out a subscript or forget to dot an "i," as a buzzard waits for its prey to collapse. Corrects most insignificant error and goes to bed feeling he has benefited society. His latest craze is measuring square-root signs over fractions to see whether they extend far enough over the denominator.

THE NOTE-TAKER—Sits and takes notes all period. Takes notes when professor talks about the trip he took last summer. Averages 200 pages per subject per semester. Secret ambition is to learn shorthand. His nightmare is about running out of ink. Come time to study for a test, he borrows somebody else's notes. Can't read his own.

THE APPLE POLISHER—Sits in the front row at all times. Always has a textbook ready in case instructor should ask for a copy. At home he practices facial expressions in a mirror. His best is "enraptured interest" which he uses during lecture. Gets convulsions when professor tells jokes. Is surprised at his final mark; always gets one grade lower than he thought he would.

THE FRATERNITY MAN—Cannot study alone. Is never seen in school; he lives at the frat house. Works hard all semester and tries to get as much out of the course as possible, but never fails to take advantage of the complete file of notes and tests that his fraternity brothers have compiled. His gregariousness compels him to sit in the back row during tests.

THE NONCHALANT TYPE—Takes no notes. Always eats lunch in class, even if it is the only class he has that day. Sometimes reads a paper during lecture, stopping only to look at his watch. Cuts classes habitually, often coming in only for tests. Gets third highest marks in class. Brings gorgeous girls to all school dances. Is secretly hated by all.

Garber Leading Frosh Hoopsters To Greatest Recent Season

• GEORGE WASHINGTON'S freshman team coached by 'Jug' Garber, continued to roll up unbelievably high scores in last week's encounters.

Sparked by the point-making abilities of Ken Hirschfield, the Colonial yearlings beat both the Naval Receiving Station and the Fort Myer quintets. In its preparations for the big game with the Georgetown Frosh at the Army on January 28, the frosh showed better form last week than at any time during the season.

The "big men" started to move, and the colorful play of Guards Dave Burke and Joe Maschirelli was a big factor in the recent surge.

Next week's opponents probably won't provide too much trouble for the junior Colonials. On tap are Bullis Prep and U. S. Air Force teams. That date in late January, however, promises to be one of the better local games of the season. The Hilltoppers have a team that averages about 6'5", but they'll be without playmaker Barry Sullivan who fractured his hand in practice.

With this the last Hatchet for the semester, it's time to wish good luck to Bob Edenbaum as he moves up to the varsity Bob, who started playing frosh ball last February, developed into a fine scorer this year. Under the basket, 6'3" Bob should be an asset to the varsity when Coach Reinhart sees fit to use him.

Edenbaum may play varsity ball this year or may save a year of eligibility by waiting until next fall.

In either event, look for Bob Edenbaum as a top man on the basketball squads of the near future. • THE REMAINDER of the frosh basketball schedule is as follows:

Jan. 20—U. S. Air Force, here.
Jan. 28—Georgetown, Army.
Jan. 31—Anacostia Naval, there.
Feb. 2—Marines, Eastern.
Feb. 7—Bethesda, there.
Feb. 13—Bullis, here.
Feb. 15—Georgetown, Army.
Feb. 21—Ft. Meade, here.
Feb. 25—Maryland, Eastern.

Buff Fail To Swim Opponents

• A GAME BUT undermined Colonial swimming team dropped their first and second meets of the year losing to Virginia Polytechnic Institute and William and Mary Extensional School in Norfolk 61-14 and William and Mary College at Williamsburg 46-23.

At Norfolk, the swimming Colonials put up a stubborn fight before bowing. Although the score was large, the races were very close and all that is needed is experience. Tom Trotter captured the only first place by winning the 100 yard free style but Charley Yuhl came through to place third in the 220 free style. The remaining points were garnered when George Webb took a third in the 50 yard free style and Jim Hardy took third in the 150 yard breast stroke.

W&M Wins
Moving from Norfolk to Williamsburg, the Colonials managed to capture two firsts, three seconds, and two third place ribbons before bowing to William and Mary 46-23. Tom Trotter again took first place in his specialty the 100 yard free style and then anchored the victorious 400 yard free style relay team. The relay team was made up of Frank Bueferd who also took second in the 100 yard free style. Jim Hardy, winner of second place in the 150 breast stroke, George Webb, who won second place in the 50 yard free style.

Sweep Diving
William and Mary then swept diving and the medley events while the Colonials were collecting a pair of third places with Paul Andres placing in the 200 yard free style and Charley Yuhl taking third in the 200 yard breast stroke. Lynn George took second in the 440 yard free style, but as he was a freshman his points did not count and he swam only as an exhibition.

The next meet is tentatively set for February 7, with Georgetown. Coach Elmer Hypsly, urges all prospective swimmers to turn out for the team as the squad is badly undermanned. This week three members of the Colonial football team, Charley Gunner, Billy Shaw and Dave Shiver had to go along to bring the team up to meet strength. Principally, Coach Hypsly is looking for divers, breast stroke men, and plenty of good swimmers.

Cage Squad Hitting Philly Trail Next; Moffatt Sparks Win Over Maryland

• WITH HOPES of continuing some semblance of a winning streak, the Colonials travel to the City of Brotherly Love next Saturday in order to tackle Temple University. Last year George Washington took advantage of Philadelphia's hospitality and accepted a 12-point victory over the Owls. But every sport has the perennial dark horse and in basketball it is Temple. This is a club which is capable of knocking off Kentucky and Oklahoma on successive evenings and then on the third night lose to Dogpatch Normal.

• ATTEMPTING TO GRAB the basketball out of the mid-air is Maryland's Charlie Mack. The Colonial cagers moving in are Ace Adler and Bud Goglin. The Buff and Blue defeated the Terps.

This year the Owls sport a starting quintet which averages six feet four. At center there is Ike Borsavage six feet seven. Ike's been concentrating on grabbing rebounds now he is shooting. Tending the forward positions are two more veterans, Johnny Ballots six feet four who was high scorer for Temple against GW last year and Ray Werther, six feet two, a lad who resembles our Johnny Moffatt, both physically and on the court. A southpaw, he can hit from any angle, but prefers to drive in. Holding down the guards are Low Grayboyes six feet three, a defensive demon who just recovered from a back injury and is once again starting. The other guard is Temple's sophomore sensation and • STRENGTHENED by this year's Freshman football Squad, Coach Bo Rowland is looking forward to a highly successful season next year.

Four new teams have been added to the already tough schedule. West Virginia, admitted to the Southern Conference just this year will come down out of the mountains to meet the Colonials in Griffith Stadium, October 7.

George Washington faces another formidable opponent in William and Mary, a team which is going out of the Southern Conference to meet Michigan State next year.

The Gamecocks from South Carolina are the third team to meet Rowland's powerhouse. Coming back into the lineup after a year's layoff is the Wake Forest eleven.

In order not to conflict with the Washington Senator's Baseball schedule, the Colonials are playing a home game with VMI in Alexandria High School Stadium on September 30. Another home game not to be played in Griffith Stadium is with Maryland.

Sept. 30—VMI, Alexandria.
Oct. 7—W. Va., Griffith.
Oct. 13—VPI, Griffith.

Nov. 4—Maryland (our game) College Park.
Nov. 11—William & Mary, Williamsburg.

Adler Remains Big Cog In Current Buff Drive

By HOWIE MANN

• ONE OF THE key factors in the success of a top flight basketball team is a "big man." George Washington's bid in this direction lies with the Brooklyn born Ray Adler. Ace as he is better known around campus, stands six feet four and a half inches tall and tips the "Toledos" at 220 pounds. As can be readily seen, "the Ace" cuts quite a figure on the basketball court.

Ray's ability as a basketball player can be traced not only to size but to his fine fighting spirit and grim determination. A game competitor the Ace comes into his own as the pillar of the Colonial's backboard strength. Gifted with a very fine set shot, that is as far as so-called big men are concerned, Ace manages to throw in his share of points and add appreciably to the Colonial's scoring attack. However it is not only his fine "eye" that makes him an asset but under the boards there are few men around the Southern Conference who can steal the ball from Ace's vice-like grip. Now in his junior year here, Ace has become an almost legendary figure as his friendly attitude has made him one of the most popular men on the campus.

Ace, due to his husky build, comes in for more than his share of ribbing from the opposition's bench. Surprisingly though this taunting improves rather than detracts from Ace's fine game. Last year in the second Georgetown game Ace was taking a terrific going over from both the Hoyas and their rooters and as if in reply to this Ray started spraying shots in from all corners of the floor and was one of the key men in the defeat of the Hilltoppers. This year Ace's performance has not quite reached that of last year's

Bowling Club To Start With Tate In Charge

By LOUANNE HOFFHEINS

UNDER THE direction of the Women's Recreation Association, a new bowling club is being formed with membership open to men and women, Louanne Hoffheins, WRA Bowling Manager, announced this week.

Miss Marjorie Tate, originator of the National Inter-Collegiate Telegraphic Duckpin Bowling Tournament, has finally succeeded in laying the groundwork for a University Bowling Club to enter these tournaments as well as the Sports Days held with nearby colleges.

The bowling club will start functioning as soon as the winter term begins since the first tournament starts February 15. Last year a team from the University participated in the Inter-Collegiate Tournament, finishing third in the nation in total number of points and first in points made by the women's double section.

All students interested in joining the club are asked to contact Louanne Hoffheins, WRA Bowling Managers or one of the class managers: Senior Class, Beverly Rohrs and Jane Tully; Junior Class, Ann Nolte and Mary Strain; Sophomore Class, Nancy Dilli and Gayle Greenwood; and Freshman Class, Mickey Hazelgrove and Mae Zabitsky.

A list will also be placed on the bulletin board of the Student Union where students may sign up for membership in the new organization.

Moffat Paces Loop

JOHN MOFFAT, Colonial cager, is presently pacing the Southern Conference in individual points scored. "Big John" has dropped in 48 field goals and 34 foul tries for a total of 130 points in 8 conference games. In second place is Jay Handlan of W&L with 122 points.

Buff Five

the boy the Owls publicity office is touting for "all" honors, six feet five Billy Milkvey. Milkvey, besides possessing a good eye does something six footers consider taboo. He dribbles, and he does it well, first year for the Freshmen Milkvey averaged 30 points per game.

Victims Potent

A victory over the Owls would be a nice one to cop but the Colonials really have a job cut out for themselves. A few of the Temple victims have been Syracuse, N. Y. U. and Duke, which recently upset North Carolina state.

Maryland's hoopsters probably went into their game Saturday night with illusions of coping the city title. Having upset Georgetown the previous week, all the Terps needed was to get by G.W. But a peculiar atmosphere pre-valled in the Colonial locker room prior to game time, the boys just about decided it was time to play a ball game; not the type they had shown in 10 previous outings. Final score: G.W. 72, Maryland 51.

Paced by Captain John Moffatt, the Colonials outran, outshot, outjumped and outfought their hosts at College Park. Playing probably one of the best games of his career, Moffatt was tremendous. His sparkling defensive play paved the way for George Washington's fast break and his 24 points on tap-ins and one-hand push shots was high for both teams.

Lead 18-8

It wasn't a ball game at all for Maryland. In the first few minutes of play the score was tied at 3-all. Then Moffatt put in the first of his 11 field goals. After six minutes the score was 18-8, a lead which the Colonials added to throughout the entire game.

"Bones" Cerra, who seems more effective when not starting, also played a great game. His 12 points placed him second in scoring and he did Yeomans job off the backboards when Adler had accumulated four personals in the first half.

Another factor in victory was Gene Witkin's job of holding Koffenberger to a measly field goal. It was Koffenberger's shooting that paced the Terps to their win over GW.

Hit 45 Per Cent

The Colonials themselves had a phenomenal night, hitting on 45 percent of their shots. Both teams emptied their benches, with 5 minutes remaining in the game.

Ramblers Suffer Loss; Fraternity Tilts See Several Tight Tests

INDEPENDENT basketball offered little activity this week with all teams in leagues, A, B, and C out of action, although Hillel and the Sigs were awarded forfeit victories.

League D, However, had two close games with the Ramblers in action, twice. In the first game, they slipped by the Catamounts, 38-32, but they fell before the Wheelers, 28-27.

A late surge by the Ramblers earned the first win, although the Catamounts' Jack Tivnan took scoring honors with 11 points. Shipman and Jones, with 8 markers each, were high for the winners.

The one-point loss to the Wheelers was the Ramblers' first loss. Jack Baumgartner's "snowbird" in the last ten seconds gave the Wheelers the winning margin. Jim England shared high points with Baumgartner with 14 points for each. Harvey Shipman was the Ramblers top man with 13.

Bradley Brewster with a record of four wins and two losses have a half-game lead over the Eastern Bombers in League A.

With identical 5 and 1 records, Pharmacy and See-Sees are tied for League B's lead.

The Phi Betes, 5-1, lead League C, with Hillel, 4-2, close behind. In League D, the Wheelers need a win over the Catamounts to gain a first-place tie with the Ramblers.

coach, came in and said, "Bill, your boys looked fine but why don't they run more?" Howie Hoffmann and Waldo Goglin both received knee injuries and Witkin's shiner ought to bloom by tomorrow. Goglin attempted dressing in McNiff's uniform. Finally realized it when putting on. Prof. I. Small wandered into the dressing room as the team was on its way to the court. When Bobby Parkinson went into the game Reinhardt stunned him by saying "Don't shoot. I don't want you to lose your average" (Parky took one shot and made it against Richmond). Nice to have "Sam da Scribe" back in there. Jug Garber, Frosh coach, always around giving out with his court wisdom, quoting the Tin Tabernacle Jog's a "great competitor" . . . Word around that Terp coach Flucie Stewart called it quits after Saturday night. How did Howie make two lay-ups in one evening? "Moncie," Colonial trainer, duped when Witkin feigned cramps 5 minutes before game time.

THRILLS AND CHILLS filled the pungent atmosphere of the gymnasium as Interfraternity basketball reached the halfway mark Sunday.

TDX 42-SAE 41 in the feature game of the week, SAE and Theta Delta Chi met in an evenly matched, free scoring contest for possession of second place in the powerladen league "A." When the smoke had cleared, the Theta Deltis held a one point margin and had finally emerged the victors in a see-saw, uphill battle.

33 fouls were committed in the hard fought struggle, and it was at the foul line that the margin of victory was obtained. Making 8 points in 20 tries against SAE's 5 for 13 average, Theta Delt, paced by Joe Famulette's 15 points, overcame a 31-27 third period deficit to come from behind for the win.

PIKA 40-TKE 19

Meanwhile, Pi Kappa Alpha, with a 3-0 record, continued to bowl over all comers and retain the league "A" lead with no apparent trouble.

Latest victims to the PIKA avalanche was Tau Kappa Epsilon. In a wide open game which saw the leaders take a 15 point lead in the first period and coast to an easy win, TKE's Don Caulfield salvaged some honor for his team by copping high individual score with 13 points. Frank Close and Bob Savage swished 10 points each for the winners as they romped to a 40-19 walkaway.

In league "B," Phi Alpha retained first place when its game with Delta Tau Delta was postponed.

Sig Chi 29-TEPI 13

Sigma Chi moved into a second place tie in league "B" by virtue of a 29-13 rout over Tau Epsilon Pi. Ed Hughes, with 11 points led the way in dull game that was distinguished only by an unusual number of fouls—40.

Sig Nu 23-Phi Sig 18

Phi Sigma Kappa was handed its first league "C" loss in a stunning upset at the hands of a hitherto winless Sigma Nu team. Ahead by one point at the half, Sigma Nu, paced by Serge Gamba's 7 points, pulled away in the second half to a 23-18 win.

Taking an easy 34-21 win from Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma gained a first place tie with the Phi Sigs in another League "C" contest. It was Kappa Sig all the way as Dick Wollumb led the attack with 11 points.

AEPi 45-Phi Ep 5

Alpha Epsilon won its first game in league "D" play with a resounding smack as it snowed the hapless Phi Epsilon PIs under, 45-5, to rack up the biggest score of the week. In a game which saw the losers held to a total of no points in the second half, AEPi's Gene Malkin took scoring honors with 10 points as Don Becker racked up 4 of the loser's 5 point total.

SPE 27-Acacia 14

Sig Ep, with Cummings and Morris scoring 6 points each, took over second place in League "D" by taking Acacia over the jumps, 27-14. "Punchy" Moss of Acacia shared in scoring honors with a total of 6.

NCAA Drama Rates Stars Though Some 'Hams' Act

"Save your Confederate money, Boys,
The South will rise again.
They'll be wearin' the Gray
On old Broadway . . ." (*)

YOU STUDENTS of the drama can move off of 42nd Street in New York any time you're ready; Schubert's Alley can be vacated at any time, for the real drama has moved to the halls of the Commodore Hotel, where the season's latest and most thrilling spectacle, "Purity, Sanity, and Brotherhood," or, "Kappa Alpha and SAE will Rise Again," has just finished a short but highly successful run. In resume of the performances: Clarence Houston was adequate as the villain; Col. D. S. McAllister and Dr. "Curly" Byrd shared the hero's role with five other stalwarts very capably; while the only lines flubbed were those by Karl Lieb, president of the NCAA, in the role of the father: "the motion is carried." These words brought the South to its feet as a man. "No, no—two thirds are required!" After a short check with the script, "Father" returned to the stage: "You're right. The motion is not carried." The curtain bounced several times before coming to a full rest—another triumphant chapter was added to the history of the theater.

I couldn't help but insert some of the reactions of an observer several hundred miles from New York, and how melodramatic some of the aspects of the NCAA meeting could seem, but no one will deny that a very serious, important, and far reaching function was served by the conference and the victory of the Southern Bloc. A little background may help for those who have not followed the developments too closely. The Citadel, VMI, VPI, and the University of Virginia, along with Villanova, Boston College and Maryland, were up for expulsion from the National Collegiate Athletic Association for violating the "sanity code" of the NCAA. These schools from the Southern Conference, and Virginia, had come out and said that they were in violation of the code, but that they felt they had to do something for their athletes in lieu of giving them parttime jobs. This is one phase of the argument, anyway. There are others, but it adds up to the fact that these southern schools were in violation of the code; their stand however, was a more honest one than those schools (particularly midwesterners) who heartily supported the code. The crux of the matter was "are you going to admit that the code is unworkable and change it, or are you going to keep the code and circumvent it by dubious means?" Or, as the Southern Cal football player said in answer to the radio announcer's question, "Did you have good blockers on your team that played in the Rose Bowl?": "You bet! The best that money can buy!"

With this situation facing it, the NCAA met in New York and to all appearances, held a very quiet and undramatic session until that final "scene" when the expulsion vote came up on the final day. Behind the scenes, however, in committee meetings, over dinner plates and coffee cups, the friends and colleagues of the southern schools being charged with violation were lining up support for the "recalcitrants." President Byrd gained the headlines as one of the leaders of the "rebel" forces. But I shouldn't doubt if George Washington's Max Farrington did not play an equally important role in gaining votes for the confessed violators. As a vice-president of the Southern Conference, a man mentioned as a possible "czar" for the conference, and as George Washington's representative to the NCAA, along with Dr. Burnice Jarman and Coach Bo Rowland, Farrington could have, and probably did, rally support.

With this background established, the NCAA meeting must have been a tense gathering as Clarence Houston of Tufts College presented the charges against the seven violators of the "code." President Lieb then called for a vote, a two thirds majority being needed to expel the schools. The vote was 111 to 98, 25 short of the majority. The "party" ticket had come through. The sane violators of the "sanity Code" were still in the bonds, though still violators.

The funny thing about the result of the situation is that the Citadel is still quitting the NCAA every day, almost. Col. D. S. McAllister, Dean of student activities at the Citadel stated: "We resigned in December, we resigned again today and we are still resigned although those fellows seem hard to convince. If they had accepted the resignation and not brought us on the floor, we probably would have applied for readmission. Now that's out." All of which leaves me a little confused, but as a true Southerner, I'm at least satisfied with our victory in the battle of the Commodore Hotel.

Another development of the meeting, was the completion of George Washington's 1950 football schedule. South Carolina was added to the Colonial's list of foes, meeting George Washington here on October 26. If you notice the lineup of the schedule on page 9, I think you will agree that the Colonials are at last working out their schedule to everyone's advantage, but mostly the Buff and Blue. Virginia, of course, is always an interesting game, if a tough one—perhaps the toughest on the Colonial schedule next to Maryland. VMI and VPI are good foes for the early season meetings. West Virginia will be beatable, Dud DeGroot probably won't be at the coaching helm, which will weaken the Mountaineers. Even Wake Forest, with such men as Bill Gregus out, will present a more evenly matched crew for Bo Rowland's squad.

William and Mary will be rough as will be Maryland. But, then, the Buff and Blue themselves should have reached that peak of postwar development that could bring to George Washington one of its best elevens. All things considered, the schedule looks very well balanced, intelligently planned. Gee, just think, we get a chance to beat Georgetown before they go to the Sun Bowl again next year.

The South will rise again,
They'll be wearin' the Gray
On old Broadway . . ."

● A GAME between the junior and freshman squads last Thursday officially opened the competitive season for girls' basketball. Despite the superior playing of Peggy Ellis, freshman guard, the junior forwards, sparked by Marian Baker, managed to break through and win 43 to 17. High score for the game was Hildegarde Sterling who scored 18 points for the juniors. Mary Ann Yeager helped to hold back the freshman forwards who were led by Emily Cooke.

The upper-classmen again proved that experience helps when the seniors defeated the sophomores in a 43-27 game Friday. Joanne Spaulding led the senior team by tossing in 18 points. Jean Tuhy and De Depaoli, senior guards, managed to hold Annette Rubin and Julie Hall to 8 points each.

Future games are scheduled with Gallaudet, Maryland, Marjorie Webster, and other colleges in the Washington area.

After reigning for five years as ping-pong champions, Phi Sigma Sigma Sorority was defeated last Monday by Sigma Kappa in the inter-sorority ping-pong tournament. Delta Gamma and Pi Phi tied for third place.

The next event on the inter-sorority athletic calendar is bowling tournament which will be held sometime in February.
